

PHOTO BY SEAN JONES

(ABOVE): A covered wagon rolls along a trail at the Tallgrass Prairie National Preserve. The preserve was home to the 10th annual Symphony in the Flint Hills event this year. Photo by Justin Sperry.

(RIGHT): Nancy Landon Kassebaum, former U.S. senator from Kansas and Tallgrass Legacy Chair, speaks at the opening of the concert. Beside her, Linda Tilton, sign language interpreter, translates for the hearing impaired. This is Tilton's 10th year with Symphony in the Flint Hills. Photo by Justin Sperry

Decade

of Symphony in the

Flint Hills

From a close-knit birthday party on the prairie to a concert event with 8,000 volunteers, attendees and musicians, the Symphony in the Flint Hills has transcended into something other-worldly. The symphony's return to the Tallgrass Prairie National Preserve marked the 10-year anniversary of the organization and its signature event.

— continued on the inside